LENA Swing

Design from Francesca Rosignoli and Alessandra Balsotti

Who hasn't dreamed of sitting on a swing again and rocking back and forth forever? Now you can reminisce your childhood from the comfort and intimacy of your own home through the enigmatic Lena swing. Designed by the Italians Francesca Rosignoli and Alessandra Balsotti, this swing presents an original and fun design, ideal for personalising any outdoor (terrace, porch, or garden) or indoor environment. Can you imagine it in the dining room or the bedroom?

Made of polythene, the Lena Swing stands out for its delicate minimal lines, present in the fine braided polyester ropes that shape its structure. Its main individuality is found in the decoration of the seat itself, whose structure is made through the interlacing of strings that create an 'X', that pass through the holes of the board and ensures the structure of the set. This crisscross game is directly inspired by the traditional cross-stitch technique. In this way, tradition is combined with modernity, thus creating a timeless product that is ideal for all types of audiences.

The Lena Swing seeks comfort and simplicity, creating a striking and energetic visual game in the room, thanks to its vibrant colour combination of red and white. It is a fashionable accessory that poses an invitation to relax in an authentic and light-hearted way. Take a break from routine through its gentle swaying!
